

European Journal of Psychology Open

Open Call for Associate Editors

The Journal

The European Journal of Psychology Open (EJPO) publishes innovative, original, high-quality empirical papers from all fields of psychology. As the name implies, the journal has a European orientation and aims to promote modern open science practices. It also aims to promote young talents: fresh, modern, open, progressive, innovative. EJPO is the official open access empirical journal of the European Federation of Psychologists' Associations (EFPA).

You can find more information here: www.hgf.io/epo

Your Role and Opportunity

EJPO is looking for motivated and committed early career Associate Editors to join the journal. Under the expert guidance of the senior editors, they will develop their scientific journal editing skills and will gain experience in the peer review process.

We are looking for you, if

- you are an early career researcher;
- you are motivated, diligent, and committed to learn how to ensure swift and high-quality editorial processes;
- you want to foster open science and scientific integrity;
- you are committed to developing psychology in Europe;
- you are motivated to support other early career psychologists as reviewers and authors;
- you are enthusiastic about working alongside a team of experienced Senior Editors and members of the Editorial Board who are experts in their field.

Associate editors will have opportunities to grow their professional network through the connection with EFPA and EFPA's events particularly the European Congresses of Psychology.

Applications are encouraged from across the discipline of psychology, from all countries in Europe, and from underrepresented groups. Individuals with either a quantitative or a qualitative research background are strongly encouraged to apply. It should be noted that these are voluntary, nonpaid positions. Your tasks will be:

- to handle annually up to 20 submissions for which you will be fully responsible. All submissions will be handled through the (comfortable) online submission system;
- to provide guidance and support to authors and reviewers in following the journal guidelines and abiding by high standards of ethics and publication integrity;
- to promote excellence in science and contribute to the development of the journal into a premier outlet for quality psychological research in all areas;
- to provide support and assistance to authors and reviewers in abiding by open science practices;
- to help shape and support the journal and develop the relationship with EFPA.

Associate editors can expect to serve a four-year term with the journal. The final selection will be made on the basis of both research excellence and fit with the research themes that the journal typically handles.

Are you looking for an opportunity to join EJPO and impact the field of open psychological publishing? Then please apply now by sending your CV and motivation letter to Senior Editor Georgia Panayiotou (ejpoeditor@ucy.ac.cy). All applications will be acknowledged and shortlisted applicants may be invited to a short zoom interview.