Call for Nominations: Editor-in-Chief, Journal of Personnel Psychology

The Journal of Personnel Psychology is soliciting nominations for the role of editor-in-chief, to take effect from January 2025. The editor-in-chief, who enjoys full editorial independence, shall be responsible for the scientific content of the journal, which currently appears in four issues per annual volume. The editor-in-chief is supported by a team of associate editors and an editorial board.

The Journal of Personnel Psychology is a periodical dedicated to international research in psychology as it relates to the working environment and the people who “inhabit” it. The journal publishes empirical and theoretical contributions to basic and applied research in personnel psychology and related methodology as well as reviews covering all fields in personnel psychology, including selection, performance measurement, motivation, leadership, organizational commitment, personnel development and training, new test developments, and job analysis. As many topics in personnel psychology are closely related to issues in other branches of psychology or, more generally, the social sciences and human resource management, the journal is open to contributions of an interdisciplinary nature.

The term of office of the editor-in-chief will be 4 years initially, with the hope and possibility of renewal for a further 4-year term. Candidates for the position should have prior editorial experience with a peer-reviewed journal and should be in the position to offer the significant commitment of time, expertise, and resources that such a position requires.

Nominations (including self-nominations) should be sent by email or attached letter, stating why the candidate should be considered for the position, with a short description of relevant qualifications and editorial experience, to publishing@hogrefe.com. Nominations should be submitted by Friday May 3, 2024.

Requests for further information about the role from the perspective of the current editor may be sent to the journal's current editor-in-chief, Jonas W. B. Lang (j.w.b.lang@exeter.ac.uk). Interested candidates are also welcome to speak to Robert Dimpleby, publishing manager at Hogrefe Publishing (robert.dimpleby@hogrefe.com), about the broader context of the Journal of Personnel Psychology.
