

Hogrefe Publishing Article Publication Charges (APCs) Waiver Application

Before completing the following application, please read the Hogrefe Waivers & Discounts Policy.

Hogrefe Publishing offers a generous waiver program for eligible corresponding authors who have submitted a paper to one of Hogrefe's open access journals. However, waiver funds are limited and the Editors and Publisher wish to ensure that waivers are granted to authors in financial need who can take advantage of our waiver program. Please note your research grant may already include budget to cover publication costs. Many institutions/funders also have dedicated open access funds or block grants available. Please contact your institution or funder to find out whether you can access funding to cover APCs before completing this waiver application.

In some cases, Hogrefe Publishing has partnership agreements with organizations in which members are entitled to a full waiver or discount. Please refer to the specific Hogrefe journal website for more information.

The ability of a corresponding author to pay APCs does not have any influence on the editor decision process. APCs are payable upon article acceptance and before publication. The corresponding author of the article is responsible for arranging payment unless a full waiver has been granted.

Hogrefe Publishing will consider waiver requests if one or more of the following conditions apply to the Corresponding Author. If you would like to apply for an APC waiver, please check all that apply:
