Hogrefe OpenMind rights and licensing

Prior to publication of the article, the corresponding author will be asked to sign a publication release form with the following terms:

The author confirms and guarantees on behalf of themselves and any coauthors that they hold all copyright in and titles to the submitted contribution, including any figures, photographs, line drawings, plans, maps, sketches, tables, and electronic supplementary material (ESM), and that the article and its contents do not infringe in any way on the rights of third parties. ESM files are published online as received from the author(s) without any conversion, testing, or reformatting. They will not be checked for typographical or other errors or for functionality. Insofar as personal data of third parties (data subjects) are a subject of the article, the author confirms in particular that the data protection rights of the data subjects have been safeguarded during the collection and processing of personal data and do not conflict with publication. The author indemnifies and holds harmless the publisher from any third-party claims.

The author agrees on behalf of themselves and any coauthors, upon approval of the article for publication, to assign the publisher the nonexclusive right to reproduce and distribute the article and its contents, both physically and in non-physical, electronic, or other form, in the journal to which it has been submitted and in other independent publications, with no limitations on the number of copies or on the form or the extent of distribution. These rights are assigned for the duration of copyright as defined by international law. Furthermore, the author assigns to the publisher the following nonexclusive rights to the article and its contents:

- The rights to produce advance copies, reprints or offprints of the article, in full or in part, to undertake or allow translations into other languages, to distribute other forms or modified versions of the article, and to produce and distribute summaries or abstracts.
- The rights to microfilm and microfiche editions or similar, to the use of the article and its contents in videotext, teletext, and similar systems, to recordings or reproduction using other media, digital or analogue, including electronic, magnetic, and optical media, and in multimedia form, as well as for public broadcasting in radio, television, or other forms of broadcast.
- The rights to store the article and its contents in machine-readable or electronic form on all media (such as computer disks, compact disks, magnetic tape), to store the article and its contents in online databases belonging to the publisher or to third parties for viewing or for downloading by third parties, and to present or reproduce the article or its contents on visual display screens, monitors, and similar devices, either directly or via data transmission.
- The rights to reproduce and distribute the article and its contents by all other means, including photomechanical and similar processes (such as photocopying or facsimile), and as part of so-called document delivery services.
- The right to transfer any or all of the rights mentioned in this agreement, as well as the rights retained by the relevant copyright clearing centers, including the corresponding royalty rights to third parties.
- Unless otherwise indicated, articles and accompanying materials published in the journal are licensed by the respective authors for use and distribution subject to citation of the original source in accordance with the Creative Commons license that is cited. The copyright of the articles remains with the respective author(s).
