

Marketing Questionnaire

Dear Author / Editor,

Hogrefe Publishing undertakes a range of marketing measures to promote the books we publish, both to bookstores and directly to the book's potential readers. Since you, as author, are likely to have expert knowledge about the audience for your book and how to reach them, we'd like to enlist your help and advice in planning marketing activities. Please consider and let us know your thoughts on the following:

1. Working title:

Please write your response here!

2. Author(s) / editor(s):

Please write your response here!

3. Promotion text:

Please provide a draft promotion text for your book, for use on the cover and in other promotion material, including our website. Ideally, this text should be 8-10 lines long and should highlight: what is new and unique about the book; the readership for which it is intended; and the benefits readers will obtain from reading the book.

Please write your response here!

4. "About the author" text, author photos:

4.1. Please let us have brief (3-4 lines) professional blurbs about yourself and any coauthors/coeditors, which will enable readers to understand why you are well qualified to be writing about this topic.

Please write your response here!

- 4.2. Some of our promotion materials include author photos, so please send us a high-resolution “head and shoulders” photo (such as taken with a normal digital camera). By sending us a photo, we understand that you are consenting to the use of your image as described in the attached data protection statement.

4.3. Data Protection

The Publisher uses your personal data for the performance of the publishing contract. This includes, in particular, the reproduction, distribution, and marketing of your work in accordance with the contract. Information about how we process your personal data for the publishing contract can be found here: hgf.io/author-policies

5. Endorsements:

Brief, pithy endorsements from well-known “names” in the field look good on a book’s cover and in marketing materials. Please send us names and contact details (as far as you know them) of suitable colleagues. Endorsements are usually written on the basis of galley proofs, so please also indicate whether you: (a) prefer to make the first contact yourself and simply let us know who agreed and their contact details; or (b) prefer to give us names/contact details and we take care of the rest.

Please write your response here!

6. Book reviews:

We routinely invite a range of publications to review books, but are always grateful for specific suggestions. Please provide names of the most relevant publications for your book, if possible with the editor’s contact details. If you have personal contact with any relevant book review editors, please also let us know.

Please write your response here!

7. Conventions, meetings, seminars:

- 7.1. Lectures and talks by authors are among the most effective means of promoting a book. Please keep us informed of your activities and discuss how we can support you.

Please write your response here!

- 7.2. We exhibit at numerous meetings during the year and also have books exhibited as part of combined book displays. Please list important meetings relevant for your book that are taking place over the next 6–24 months – especially if you yourself are talking/attending.

Please write your response here!

8. Flyers and handouts

We will likely be preparing a flyer for your book in due course. We will send you an electronic copy that you can distribute to colleagues. Please let us know how many printed copies you’d like (e.g., to hand to colleagues) and when you will need them (e.g., if there is a good opportunity coming up such as a meeting or presentation). Should you have or could obtain relevant address lists (postal or email) to whom we can mail announcements, please share these with us.

Please write your response here!

9. Professional associations, societies:

Potential readers of your book are likely to be members of professional or scientific associations, and these in turn can provide opportunities to inform members about your book (e.g., via postal or electronic mailings, newsletters, journals, meetings). Please list relevant societies or associations and provide contact names and any details you can, especially if you have personal contacts. The more specific or “targeted” these associations are for the topic of your book, the better.

Please write your response here!

10. Free copies for key “multipliers”:

Sending a limited number of free copies to key figures who may then recommend the book to others can be an effective marketing tool. If you think this may be the case with your book, please discuss and suggest addresses to your contact at Hogrefe Publishing.

Please write your response here!

11. Courses, classes, seminars:

Many books are of potential use for teaching and training purposes in classes or seminars. If that is the case with your book, please provide details of training institutions or teachers who might want to use the book.

Please write your response here!

12. Journals, newsletters:

Please list the most relevant journals, newsletters, or other publications where we should consider advertising the book.

Please write your response here!

13. Publishing related articles in newsletters, journals:

Publication of discussion articles, editorials, and the like related to your book in professional and scientific literature can raise interest both in the subject matter and in the book itself. Please consider writing or submitting such articles and discuss with us.

Please write your response here!

14. Listservs, electronic mailing lists, discussion groups, websites:

14.1. Electronic postings are increasingly effective marketing tools. Please send details of any lists, groups, or websites you consider relevant.

Please write your response here!

14.2. Also, if you and your coauthors/coeditors are members of any electronic mailing lists or groups where you could post announcements, please provide details and discuss timing with us. We'll be happy to provide a draft text, images, and links for you.

Please write your response here!

15. Mailing lists:

Please send us details about any other relevant mailing lists (postal or electronic) of which you are aware.

Please write your response here!

16. Memberships:

Are you a member of a (professional/topical) association or organization? Many associations or organizations that are relevant as target groups for the promotion of your book only offer services to their members. It would be very helpful to get this information for potential marketing activities.

Please write your response here!

17. Social media:

Are you active in social media channels such as Instagram, LinkedIn or Twitter?

Please write your response here!

If so, please tag us in any related postings on these channels:

- Twitter: @hogrefe_publ
- LinkedIn: Hogrefe Publishing
- Instagram: @hogrefepsych

18. Spotlight articles:

We have a series on our website called "Spotlights On," where we want to not just have product promotion, but also interesting overviews and current "editorial" material that should be interesting to practitioners, students, researchers, and more. There will of course be some "related publications" shown close by, but the idea is that the piece itself should be current, up-to-date, and of interest in its own right.

Would you be willing to create an article / articles for us on a current area of interest in your field of work?

Please write your response here!

19. Any other ideas:

Any other ideas concerning marketing activities are welcome.

Please write your response here!

Finally, if you have any questions, suggestions, or requests concerning promotion of your book, please get in touch with your main contact at Hogrefe Publishing or email our Marketing Coordinator at marketing@hogrefe.com.